Hitman reborn tsuna and kyoko

in: Edit The Overall Synopsis Share of Kyoko's Appearance Relationship with Tsuna. When Kyoko first met Tsunayoshi Sawada, she was said to be the only girl she had ever spoken to, both of whom were acquaintances, and Tsuna admired her from afar. Their first interaction together is when Tsuna enters Dying Will Mode and confesses her feelings to Kyoko, causing her to run away in fear. After Kensuke Mochida is defeated in a kendo fight, Kyoko apologizes for running away before and believes that his confession was merely witty. Kyoko is amazed that Tsuna defeats Kensuke and says that he is no ordinary person, starting their friendship events. As in the past, Kyoko has become close friends with Tsuna, as they bond together during many events and antiques throughout their day-to-day life. Their friendship is somewhat strained while trapped in the future, as Tsuna is continually reluctant to explain to Millefiore Famiglia, or the Mafia to her. Kyoko feels squeaky and concerned, and accompanies Haru Miura in continuing the strike, reluctant to cook and clean up so that they are told about everything that is secret. After realizing how hard Tsuna and the others are trying to protect them to end the strike, and Tsuna finally explains the mafia to her. Although Kyoko sees Tsuna as a good friend, it remains unknown whether she is not boring any romantic feelings for her. In Japanese, Kyoko's future compatriot refers to her as Tsu-kun, before this pseudonym was only used by her mother, although an explanation as to why was never given. Nana Sawada[edit | edit source] Kyoko does not receive too much interaction with Nana Sawada. When the two first meet, Kyoko doesn't seem to be on very good terms with Nana, who believes that she is Tsuna's female friend that Kyoko quickly denies, and trusts her son for bluntly calling him defeated. This is then extended to Kyoko's main regret before being shot with a Dead Will Bullet is Nana calling Tsuna defeated, and forcing Nana to take back what she said about Tsuna to the point nana frothed from the mouth and singed. Since Kyoko now believes the events were just dreams, she doesn't seem to be taking advantage of Nana's pain, and both are on good terms throughout the series, as they both help look after Tsuna, Lambo, and I-Pin. Ryohei Sasagawa[edit | edit source] Young Kyoko with his injured brother. Ryohei Sasagawa is Kyoko's older brother, only about a year older than him. Kyoko has a good relationship with her brother, where she is shown to admire him greatly because his strength and devotion become extreme. Ryohei is very protective towards Kyoko, in return, Kyoko has great concerns for safety. This returns when both are children, and Ryohei is attacked after Kyoko is used as bait to attract classmates who don't like Ryohei, and he promises that to never get into the fray again. Instead he fights boxing. Kyoko Kyoko Unaware of the many fights that his brother will enter in the future, and Ryohei often has to lie about his fights, pretending that their boxing match, and his injuries, which he covers with ludicrous lies. Haru Miura[edit | edit source] Kyoko with Haru. Since the two first met, it has become the closest of friends, as both share a love for eating cakes and creating an appreciation day for their love for eating cakes, which they incidentally on the third Sunday of each month. It has been stated that both Kyoko and Haru are in sync, so they both share the same Dying Will regret, although they also have a personality difference, as Haru is shown to be more energetic and decisive. Kyoko is pictured having a sleep with Haru during the Haru Haru Interview: Dangerous. Both have been shown for bonding with each other in the series, as they become close enough to have a sleep over each other, and attend many events along with Tsuna and his colleagues. Together, they both supported Tsuna and his colleagues on the sidelines, giving them encouragement and acting as a driving force for both to keep fighting. While trapped in the future, Kyoko helps Haru in helping to clean, cook, and take care of the children]], although they gradually begin to feel betrayed and abandoned every time Tsuna refuses to explain the mafia or Millefiore, despite re-tracking their friendship with Tsuna after he finally explains the mafia to both of them. I-Pin ∓Pins ∓ Lambo[edit | edit source] Kyoko holds I-Pin. Kyoko seemed to take a desire against I-Pin since the moment they first met, as Kyoko was grateful that I-Pin raised Kyoko's money when he accidentally dropped his wallet when they first met. When the two first met, Kyoko was one of those people who noticed that I-Pin was a woman, even before she got shot with Bazooka Ten Years. Kyoko is shown to take care of I-Pin, as he always takes care of I-Pin in the absence of Nana, this becomes clearer when they are in the future. Kyoko is shown to look after Lambo, becoming one of the few people uninterrupted by Lambo's child antics and often gives jokes to him because of it, although every time he debates with I-Pin and Hayato Gokudera. Just like I-Pin, Kyoko helps in keeping Lambo every time Nana is absent. Community content is available under CC-BY-SA unless otherwise stated. Three midoriya Izuku, Bakugo Katsuki, and Todoroki Shouto were chosen to participate in the mission in Italy as one of the representatives of Japanese heroes who would help shore up the worldwide terrorist group Millefiore by Byakuran. There is a misunderstanding on their part though. By the time they were fully aware of the extent of the Byakuran quirk, they were already sent to different worlds. The only connection they left out of their own world is unfortunately given by two young mafia bosses Tsunayoshi Sawada of Kerang and Ginny Farfalla of the Butterflies. Butterflies.
